INTRODUCTION & HISTORY

For the greater part of two decades, the McMenamins family of pubs and hotels have been committed to the idea that when providing good food and drink in a friendly environment, great things will happen. Located in and near unique neighborhoods, the pubs, hotels, bars and dining venues have become popular gathering spots for friends and family.

McMenamins Old St. Francis School is a natural outgrowth of this way of thinking. Along with providing a classic McMenamins Pub, the former Catholic schoolhouse now includes guestrooms, banquet and business facilities, a movie theater, a Turkish-style soaking pool, small bars, a brewery, a bakery, historical photographs, beautiful artwork and spaces for special events.

Once home to elementary-age students and their teachers, St. Francis School was a place of education, growth, spiritual development and even a few clever pranks. Today, the former schoolhouse is still quite alive and the atmosphere is as bustling as ever. Located in the heart of downtown Bend, Old St. Francis School represents the rebirth of a special place, opening it up to many, many more to enjoy.

When the school's inhabitants moved to a new location in 2000, McMenamins saw the opportunity to create a unique place that captures the charm of the original establishment while providing neighbors as well as travelers a place to relax over a fine meal in the pub, take in a movie in the theater or try one of the handcrafted ales brewed right in the basement.

McMenamins renovation of the former Catholic school and the immediate surrounding property has created a unique village in the heart of downtown Bend. Now a place to relax, slow down and enjoy the simpler side of life, Old St. Francis School is equally hospitable for a weekend getaway, a romantic wedding site or a business retreat.

AN OLD ST. FRANCIS SCHOOL PRIMER

One can feel a surge of new life here. The past, though, emits a lively presence, with the personalities and experiences of 64 years of students, teachers, priests and parishioners echoing throughout the property. All of this remarkable history hangs on the framework of the school's evolution dating back to 1910 and extending to the present day, and beyond. This framework is sketched out below as a primer for understanding the renovated school's past.

Opened in 1936, the St. Francis School was the first parochial school established in all of Central Oregon. It was the realization of a long-held dream of parish priest Father Luke Sheehan. Father Luke, who hailed from County Cork, Ireland, came to Bend in 1910 as part of an Irish Catholic mission to the "wilds" of Oregon. Father Luke established and cultivated the St. Francis parish, in large part by trekking hundreds of miles on horseback or on foot, to meet with those first, widely dispersed parishioners. Among this pious group were many of the priest's countrymen, Irish immigrants who had converged upon the high desert mostly to work as shepherders.

All of the groundwork done by Father Luke laid a solid foundation allowing for the school's construction, which ironically came during the economically disastrous time of the Great Depression. The original school building contained four classrooms, with grades one through eight paired two to a room. That first year, there were 145 students enrolled. In years to come, that number soared to more than 300. The first add-on of two classrooms was done in 1953. Seven years later, four more rooms were constructed. Then, in 1968, a spacious new parish center was built along the school's north side to house a gym, a stage, meeting rooms and a cafeteria.

By all accounts, the nuns who taught at St. Francis, all of whom were of the Sisters of the Holy Names order from Marylhurst University campus south of Portland, were effective teachers; many were taskmasters, and most had a big heart (though some chose not to wear them on their sleeves). Former students seem united in the opinion that upon entering the public high school in Bend, they academically stood about a year ahead of their public school peers.

Beginning in the late 1960s, change was afoot. Student uniforms were no longer required, lay teachers began to fill the roster at St. Francis School, and the remaining nuns no longer wore habits. But while the formal look of the faculty and student body was relaxed, the focus on quality education remained constant.

In 2000, the St. Francis School relocated to a newly constructed modern campus. The old downtown property passed to McMenamins. Following a detailed renovation that infused creative and in some cases unconventional elements into the place, the Old St. Francis School was reborn with a respectful celebration of its past and a newfound sense of fun.

In 2016, two additional hotel buildings were constructed, the Art House and Ed House – offering a total of 41 additional guestrooms to meet the soaring demand for hotel space in Bend. In true McMenamins fashion, new art and hidden rooms were part of this addition.
